

ACTUAL TOBACCO SETTLEMENT PAYMENTS RECEIVED BY THE STATES, 1998-2009 (Millions of Dollars)

The following table shows the actual payments received by the states pursuant to the individual settlements negotiated in 1997 and 1998 by Mississippi, Florida, Texas, and Minnesota to settle their lawsuits against the major cigarette companies and the November 1998 Master Settlement Agreement (MSA) between the cigarette companies and the rest of the states, DC, Puerto Rico, and the U.S. territories. Payments are for calendar years but because of payment schedules the totals for most states are the same as their fiscal year totals. The terms of the MSA called for the large payment increases in 2008, and those higher levels continue thereafter. The 2006 through 2008 payments reflect the fact that most of the MSA companies withheld or paid into disputed-payment escrow accounts amounts they claim are not due because of a retroactive Non-Participating Manufacturer (NPM) adjustment. Similar amounts were withheld or paid into disputed-payment accounts in 2009, but there was also a partial payment to the states of some of the funds withheld in prior years (but those funds are still subject to dispute).^{*} Very few states are currently spending an adequate amount of their tobacco settlement revenues to prevent and reduce tobacco use.

^{*} The NPM adjustment issue is being resolved through arbitration and the courts. States that win will get all the withheld payments plus interest. Campaign for Tobacco-Free Kids, August 10, 2009

Payments of "disputed" funds are placed in escrow until the dispute is resolved. As set forth in the settlement agreements, the base-payment amounts allocated to the states each year are subject to various adjustments prior to payment. The two major adjustments are the downward volume adjustment (based on declines in the nationwide sales of the top-four, now three, U.S. cigarette companies) and the upward inflation adjustment (equal to the higher of 3% or the actual rate of inflation each year). The volume adjustment's payment reductions have been increasingly offset by the upward inflation adjustment. MSA payments are currently made annually, due by April 15.
